MASSACHUSETTS JUDICIARY.

The Boston papers of the 18th instant, contain a letter om the Hon. Daniel Webster, in reply to an invitation of the Whig County Convention of old Plymouth, that he should be present at their meeting of Tuesday last. The earlier part of Mr. Webster's answer excuses his non-attendance, while it expresses his very hearty concur-rence in the objects of the Convention. He declares his very warm approval of the Whig nominations already made, and his own determination to support them. In Mr-Briggs, his personal and his public merits, he places the highest confidence; there could not be a better choice of a candidate for the Gubernatorial chair of the State; and he has long been accustomed to know and to admire the worth and usefulness of Mr. Reed, the nominee for the office of We have carried twelve of the twenty-four districts and has long been accustomed to know and to admire the worth Lieutenant Governor. Of this veteran and upright public servant, he justly remarks:

servant, he justly remarks:

"It is now more than thirty years since Mr. Reed and n yself entered Congress together, and for far more than half of that period he has been a member of the National House of Representatives. If all who have been with him in Congress could be called on to say what man in their acquaintance had been as much distinguished as any other man for steadiness of principle and conduct, for unostentatious usefulness and practical good sense, and for unceasing attention to the interests of his constituents, I believe a majority would name John Reed, of Massachusetts."

From these mere personal subjects, Mr. Wehrer here From these mere personal subjects, Mr. Webster then passes to one of a more lasting and less local interest, as But I acknowledge that I feel a concern for the result of 24. Joseph Buffington.

24. Joseph Buffington.

15. Heary Nes—independent. But I acknowledge that I feel a concern for the result of the approaching election, desper and stronger than could spring from mere choice of men, or the preference of one candidate to another. It is my deliberate and conscientious conviction that a dangerous blow has been struck by the Legislature of the present year upon the constitution of the Commonwealth and the liberty and security of the people; and that every just and honorable effort should be made to repair the injury.

Commonwealth and the liberty and security the prophetic contents of the Commonwealth and the liberty and security the prophetic contents of the Judges and that every just and honorable effort should be must be repart the injury.

That Legislature has passed an act reducing the salaries of the Judges of the Supreme Court; not propectively, not to operate merely on Judges to be hereafter of the Judges of the Supreme Court; not propose they have been sent to make the constitution and of statuse existing when this own of the holding their offices up ludges and in part of the Judges's salary may be taken away, the whole the Judges's and that which has heretofore been remerly onlying on constitution has imposed and part of the Judges's salary may be taken away, and that which has heretofore been remerly onlying on constitutions of the remainted of the Judges's and the section of the Judges's and the Judges's

A standing salary, which may yet be diminished at plea.

Sure; an exablished salary, which is still liable to be reduced as often and as far as others see fit to reduce it; a permanent salary, which may be changed nevertheless every day, is nothing cise than a plain and palpable inconsistency. One may just as well say that a tenancy at will is a freehold estate. The Constitution of the United States provides that the ed in the Constitution of Massachusetts.

The laws of the Commonwealth heretofore passed, and which have long remained undisturbed, fully recognise the just extent of the constitutional provision. By the act of 1809 the Chief Justice is to receive thirty-five hundred dol. lars, and the other Judges three thousand dollars each, which sums the law declares shall be paid to them for every year during their continuance in office.

Every Judge now on the Beach accepted his sppoinment and received his commission under the provisions and as-

and received his commission under the provisions and as-surances of this law; and it is not easy to see why this law, coupled with the constitutional provisions, has not given to each Judge a fixed right to this amount of compensation du-ring his continuance in office.

ring his continuance in office. The late act, therefore, sppears to me to be an invasion of constitutional previsions of the highest importance in two points of view: First, it objects to variation, alteration, and change that which the Constitution declares shall be "standing," "established," and "permanent;" secondly, it diminishes the salaries of Judges now in office, and who accepted their offices under the assurance of the law that the salaries then existing should be paid to them every year during their continuance in office.

The case therefore assurance of the law that the salaries continuance in office.

The case, therefore, appears to me, on the whole, to be a plain one; but if it were doubtful, that doubt ought to have prevented the passage of the law. It is the part of wisdom to be abstinent and scrupulous in regard to every thing which may seem to entench upon constitutional principles. I do not think it the duty of members of the Legislature or other public officers to see to what extremes they can push projects of reform or of change without open and flagrant violation of the Constitution: on the contrary. I think they ought to be influenced by a prevailing and paramount desire to administer the Government in the full spirit of the Constitution—to accomplish all the objects and fulfil the whole intent and design of all its great provisions in a just, liberal, and maniy manner. And what man of intelligence and candor can read the Bill of Rights and the Constitution of Massachusetts and not acknowledge at once that its plain and manifest intention was and is to establish a Supreme Court for the State, the Judges of which shall be independent in regard to the tenure of their office, unless misbeha. I do not think it the duty of members of the Legislature of ent in regard to the tenure of their office, unless misbeha vior be proved, and independent siso in regard to the com-pensation to be made for their services?

The Judiciary of Massachusetts, has long been to her The Judiciary of Massachusetts, has long been to her a subject of honest pride, and just self-congratulation. It has successfully performed the duties devolving upon it, and enjoyed, in a signal manner, the public confidence. It has attracted the respect of other States, and other countries. In our day we have seen at its head Dana, and Parker; men who would have adorned the bench of any court in the world, and who have raised high the character of the State, for the learning, ability, and dignity of her Supreme Judicature. And why should we now, without any sort of necessity without any sort of necessity, without any of her Supreme Judicature. And why should we now, without any sort of necessity, without any exigency of State, without any eal or denand from public opinion, why should we recklessly strike at the pillars of our own honor, and our own distinction, as well as of our liberty, security, and protection? A small, a very small pecuniary saving, is the whole amount of the good which is avowed to have been sought by the late act. If this be really and truly the whole object, is it of so much importance as to justify such a dangerous proceeding? Is it an end for the attainment of which, it is wise and patriotic to excite such serious alarm. Withiner, from Liverpool, an additional stock of filmingham lardware; making their assortment very complete, which they offer for sale on the most favorable terms.

THOS & CHAS ELLIS.

I cannot but think the act was passed inconside stely, and possibly in consequence of excitement springing from other subjects, and would fervently hope that sober men of all parties would see its impropriety and its danger. As to any reason or argument in defence of its provisions, I confoss I have seen nothing, even specious or plausible. And, in midgment, in all the political struggles which have taken place in the State within the last twenty years, no object has presented uself of such deep and permanent importance, nothing so vitally essential to the integrity of the Constitution, the security of public liberty, and the safety and happiness of the people, as the repeal of this act.

I am dear sir, with much regard, your obedient servant,

DANIEL WEBSTER.

WILLIAM DAVIS, Esq.

From the National Intelligencer. PENNSYLVANIA.

We are at length able to state with certainty the election of Mr. Reed, the Whig candidate, in the twenty-third district of Peansylvania. His majority was about 300 votes. This gratifying information completes our returns from all the districts of the State, which exhibit, on the whole, a one independent member, who, under the name of Loco-Foco, professes good Whig principles. The following is a correct list of the members elected: Whigs.

1. Edward J. Morris,
2. Jos. R. Ingersoll,
6. M. H. Jenks,
7. A. R. Mellyaine,

3. John T. Smith, 4. Charles J. Ingersoll, 5. Jacob S. Yost, 9. John Ritter, 10. Richard Brodhead,

8. Jeremiah Brown,
13. Henry Frick,
14. Alexander Ramsey,
17. James Irwin,
18. Andrew Stewart,
20. John Dickey,
23. Charles M. Reed,
24. Lossey Buffington 11. Benj. A. Bidlack, 12. Almond H. Read, 16. James Black, 19. Henry D. Foster, 21. William Wilkins, 21. William Will 22. James Hays.

The Harrisburg Intelligencer accompanies the result of the election with these encouraging remarks:

"The result of the recent election in Pennsylvania can be regarded in no other light than a glorious triumph of the Whig cause. We entered into the fight without evendreaming of the victory that was to follow. Our State Government had been so long under the domination of Locofoco. iss., and our Congressional, Senatorial and Representative districts were so infamously gerrymandered and apportioned against us, that the hope of being able to elect even a respectable minority of our candidates scarcely entered into the calculations of the most sanguine. The issue has shown, however, that the tendency of Locofocoism is downward in the Keystone State; that a spirit of inquiry is abroad among the people; and that the true character of the 'free traders' and 'currency tinkers,' who have heretofore held the away in Pennsylvania is becoming every day more apparent.—The issue of the late contest has astonished our friends almost as much as it has astounded our opponents. In several districts we have beaten them in their strongholds, where they never dreamed of, and we in our most sanguine moments never anticipated such a result.

"Notwithstanding their gerrymander of the districts last winter to suit themselves, we have elected a majority of Members of Congress, and had it not been for their diagraceful and flagrandy unjust apportionment of Representatives, we should have had a majority in the lower House sufficient for all useful purposes.

"We assure our friends, both at home and abroad, that, from the recent trial of strength, we have not the least doubt of the Whigs being able next year to route the Locofocos horse, foot, and dragoons. In view of the feeling that is abroad it requires no prophet to foretell that, in the contest of the Whigs being able next year to route the Locofocos horse, foot, and dragoons. In view of the feeling that is abroad it requires no prophet to foretell that, in the contest of the Whigs mak the election with these encouraging remarks:
